

Notice Period and Termination Policy

article_id: hr-notice-001 | policy_area: termination | effective_date: 2023-08-01 | last_updated: 2023-08-01

1. Overview

This article describes required notice periods for resignation, the involuntary termination process, and final settlement timelines. Notice-period requirements are jurisdiction-specific and vary by the employee's country of employment.

2. Notice Period by Jurisdiction

Meridian Robotics currently operates employment contracts in three jurisdictions. This table is the authoritative reference for notice-period length; do not assume a figure from one jurisdiction applies to another.

Jurisdiction	Notice Period (Employee Resignation)	Notice Period (Company-Initiated)
India	60 days	60 days
United States	14 days	0 days (at-will, subject to local exceptions)
United Kingdom	30 days	30 days, or longer if specified in the contract

This policy currently covers only India, the United States, and the United Kingdom. Employees in any other jurisdiction should contact their local HR business partner directly, since no standard notice period is defined here for jurisdictions outside this table.

3. Resignation Process

A resignation is submitted in writing via the HR portal's "Separation > Resign" flow. The notice period begins on the date the resignation is formally acknowledged by the manager in the portal, not the date it was verbally communicated.

4. Involuntary Termination

Involuntary terminations require sign-off from HR and Legal prior to the employee being notified, following the disciplinary escalation path described in the Code of Conduct Policy where applicable.

5. Final Settlement

Final settlement (last salary, unused earned-leave payout per the Employee Leave Policy, and any pending expense reimbursements) is processed within 45 days of the last working day for India and the UK, and within the next standard payroll cycle for the US.

6. Frequently Asked Questions

- Can I negotiate a shorter notice period? Yes, subject to mutual written agreement between the employee and manager, recorded in the HR portal.
- Is unused earned leave paid out on exit? Yes, per the carry-over and payout rules in the Employee Leave Policy (2024 Edition).
- What if my contract specifies a different notice period than this table? The individual employment contract takes precedence over this policy where the two conflict.

7. Escalation

Any dispute about notice-period length or final settlement amount is escalated to the HR Shared Services desk, with Legal consulted for jurisdiction-specific questions.
